Condition

<input type="checkbox"/> excellent	<input type="checkbox"/> deteriorated
<input type="checkbox"/> good	<input type="checkbox"/> ruins
<input type="checkbox"/> fair	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> altered

Prepare both a one paragraph summary and a comprehensive description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

A description of Goldsborough House is not possible based on the limitations of available photographs. The article published in the Centreville Record-Observer in March 1959 includes a view of the house after the gable wall collapsed. From this it would appear that the house was brick, 2 ½ stories high, five bays wide and one room deep, with flush brick chimneys centered on each gable. Several large additions had been made and one Victorian bay window is visible on the second floor of the collapsed gable.

Prepare a one-paragraph summary statement of significance addressing applicable criteria, followed by a narrative discussion of the history of the resource and its context. (For compliance projects, complete evaluation on a DOE Form – see manual.)

Constructed circa 1798, the Goldsborough House was one of the largest and most substantial houses in early Centreville. In size, plan, and general form it evidently was quite similar to the Covert or Betton House (QA-161) on Liberty Street. Built in 1794, the Covert House may in fact have been constructed by the same builder.

Goldsborough House was built on a four acre lot conveyed in 1792 by Mary Nicholson to her daughter Henrietta Nicholson Bracco and her son-in-law, Dr. John Bracco.¹ In the fall of 1794, John Bracco died.² Perhaps he had already begun the house, but more likely the lot was unimproved at the time of his death. His widow remarried circa 1797-98 to Dr. Robert Goldsborough, a prominent physician in Queen Anne's County.³ In 1798, the Federal Direct Tax listed Dr. Robert Goldsborough as the owner of a lot in Centreville improved by:

1 dwelling house, brick, two stories 40x24 the house not yet fully compleat, shop 16x14

1 carriage house 16x8 with granary, 1 meat house 11x11

1 logg stable 16x16⁴

The original four acre lot was expanded by several purchases over the years, and by the time of Dr. Goldsborough's death in 1849 had grown to include approximately 18 acres between the streets now known as Railroad Avenue and Kidwell Avenue. After Dr. Goldsborough death, the house and property passed to the son, Dr. Robert Goldsborough, Jr.⁵ In 1858 Dr. Goldsborough and his wife were forced to convey the land to a Trustee and the property was sold to settle debts.⁶ In 1860 it was purchased from the Trustee, Woolhand Gibson, by William McKenney, a prominent local businessman.⁷ McKenney was in fact the son-in-law of Dr. Goldsborough, having married Eleanor Ridgely Goldsborough in 1851.⁸ By purchasing the house and land he made it possible for his wife to regain possession of the house in which she was raised. Over the years, some of the land acquired by William McKenney in 1860 was sold off for house lots and to the Queen Anne's and Kent Railroad, but the house and a large lot remained in the McKenney family until the early 1960's. In March 1959 a severe windstorm caused one corner of the house to collapse,⁹ and in 1963 it was demolished.¹⁰ The lot was subdivided and sold. Part of the front portion of the lot was deeded to the Queen Anne's County Historical Society while the remainder was sold to the County Commissioners. Wright's Chance and the public library now occupy the front lawn of Goldsborough House.
